Olivia Erhardt was a volunteer at the Cincinnati Observatory who sadly passed away in January 2016 at just 19 years old. Olivia was involved at the Observatory during her high school years before taking her love of science to Columbia University for college, where she studied physics. Olivia’s enthusiasm for STEM (Science Technology Engineering and Math) fields and education were an inspiration to those who knew her. We are grateful she chose to share her gifts with our visitors as a volunteer at the Observatory.

Olivia’s family, parents Mark and Joan and her sister Sophia, designated memorials to the Cincinnati Observatory to support our Youth Outreach program and our work connecting more girls as well as underserved students to STEM education. The overwhelming support of Olivia’s family and friends far exceeded our expectations, and through this generous remembrance we are establishing the Olivia Erhardt Scholarship Fund.

Annually, the Observatory will award $500 gifts from Olivia’s Fund to the following:

- a female Junior or Senior High school student looking to study in a STEM field in college
- a student or students from an underserved school or community to attend one of the Observatory’s camps.
